New Partnership with TCT

COACB is excited to announce a new partnership with TCT, Total Christian Television, that is expanding the reach of Christian television in Ohio, Indiana, and Michigan.

Through this partnership, COACB is now broadcasting on Channel 12.8 in Fort Wayne, Indiana, through TCT's WINM/W17EX-D, and on Channel 54.11 in the Grand Rapids/Kalamazoo, Michigan area, through WTLJ/W25GE-D. In return, COACB is carrying TCT on Channel 39.6 across our four owned television stations serving Marion, Delaware, Columbus, and Ashland.

What makes this partnership unique is that it is a carriage exchange between two Christian broadcasters. Instead of purchasing airtime from one another, COACB and TCT are working together to expand the reach of both ministries and bring more Christian programming into more homes.

For more than four decades, COACB has worked to share the Gospel while also providing a television platform for local churches and ministries. As our coverage grows, so does the potential audience for those ministries. A program produced by a local church here in Ohio can now reach viewers hundreds of miles away in Indiana and Michigan.

That is what makes expansion important to us. It isn't simply about adding another city to a coverage map. It is about giving churches and ministries a larger voice and providing more opportunities for people to hear the Gospel and be encouraged in their faith.

We are thankful for TCT and their willingness to work together with us. We are also thankful for the churches, viewers, and supporters who continue to make the growth of this ministry possible.

Our goal remains the same: to use every opportunity God gives us to strengthen local churches, support Christian ministries, and share the Gospel with as many people as possible. We are excited about where this partnership can take us and what God will continue to do through Christian television.

Nationwide Emergency Alert System Test
Scheduled for November 17

On Tuesday, November 17, 2026, at 2:20 PM Eastern Time, television and radio stations across the United States will participate in a nationwide test of the Emergency Alert System (EAS). The test is being conducted by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) in cooperation with the Federal Communications Commission (FCC).

The Emergency Alert System is an important part of our nation's public safety communications network. It allows government officials to quickly distribute critical information through television, radio, cable, and satellite services during national emergencies.

During the November 17 test, viewers watching COACB may notice their regular programming briefly interrupted by an emergency alert message. The familiar alert tones will sound, followed by a message explaining that this is only a test. There is no emergency, and viewers will not need to take any action. The interruption is expected to last approximately one minute before normal programming resumes.

These nationwide tests help ensure that broadcasters and emergency management agencies are prepared to communicate with the public when it matters most. The last nationwide EAS test took place in October 2023.

As a television broadcaster, COACB recognizes the importance of being prepared to serve our communities during emergencies. While our primary mission is sharing the Gospel of Jesus Christ, we also have a responsibility to help keep our viewers informed and safe.

We encourage everyone to remember that November 17 is only a scheduled test. If severe weather or another emergency requires postponement, the backup date is December 3, 2026.

At COACB, we are committed to serving our viewers through Christian programming, community information, and responsible broadcasting.

COACB Bringing Classic Christian Television Back to the Airwaves

Some of the greatest moments in Christian television happened decades ago. Many of us remember gathering around the television to hear powerful preaching, beautiful Gospel music, and messages that encouraged us in our walk with Christ. At COACB, we believe those messages deserve to be heard again.

That is why we are working to bring classic Christian television programs back to the airwaves, introducing a new generation to some of the ministries that helped shape Christian broadcasting.

One of the programs we are especially excited about is The Old-Time Gospel Hour with Dr. Jerry Falwell. Beginning in 1956, this ministry grew from a local church broadcast in Lynchburg, Virginia, into a nationally recognized Christian television program. By 1971, it was reaching viewers through more than 300 television stations across America.

Through our work with Liberty University, we have received permission to bring these historic broadcasts to COACB viewers. These programs offer an opportunity to experience the preaching and ministry of Dr. Falwell during an important chapter in the history of Christian television.

We are also exploring opportunities to bring additional classic Christian programming to our network. From familiar preachers to traditional Gospel music, we want to preserve and share programs that have encouraged believers for generations.

For longtime viewers, these broadcasts may bring back memories of Sunday mornings and evenings spent watching Christian television with family. For younger viewers, they offer a chance to experience the history of Christian broadcasting for the very first time.

The cameras may have changed, the picture may not be high definition, and the styles may be different, but the Gospel of Jesus Christ has never changed. Since 1980, COACB has been committed to sharing that Gospel. As we continue expanding our television coverage and digital platforms, we also believe it is important to preserve the Christian broadcasting heritage that helped bring us to where we are today.

Tune in Monday through Friday at 11:30 AM or 6:00 PM for The Old-Time Gospel Hour with Dr. Jerry Falwell, and keep watching as we bring even more classic Christian television back to COACB.
