DISH

Phillip Sloan, owner of Primeview Satellite, along with Pam Hopkins, his office manager, and Chuck Eickemeyer, his chief technician came to meet with David and Jonathan Aiken to demonstrate new technology now available through Dish Network. They start off by adding an antenna to their Dish receiver for local digital channels. For stations up to 10 miles away, a simple inside antenna is all that is needed. For stations over 10 miles away an outside antenna is required. They then instruct the receiver to scan for local digital channels. The receiver scans then adds received channels to the receiver's program guide.

From that point forward the receiver automatically switches between sources from on satellite and those available via the antenna by simply entering the channel number. We identify all COACB stations by the virtual channel 39 so to receive COACB stations simply enter 39. Channel 39.1 is instantly displayed. Hit the channel up key again and 39.2 is shown. Keep hitting the up key to go to 39.3 and 39.4. The COACB may add 39.5. If it is added, it will also be available.

Phillip then told David and Jonathan that everything available on the dish receiver including the local channels is available anywhere in the world via smart phone, computer or I-pod. Use your laptop to watch your favorite program at any airport, Starbucks, McDonald's, most larger restaurants and anywhere wireless internet is available. This is truly amazing. Just imagine watching Lights Camera Shop on your laptop while on an airliner at 35,000 feet over Utah. Yes it is possible. Call Primeview at (877) 204-7705.

STORIES FROM MY RELATIVES

John Hoffman

My Grandpa Snort had been a local preacher for many years and his eyesight was getting very dim. He could just barely recognize people. One Sunday morning he was walking across the front of the church. Two little eight year old boys were sitting on the front pew. They were wearing short pants. Grandpa Snort stopped in front of them, placed his hands on their knees and prayed, "Now, may God bless these two bald-headed men." Earlier he had put his hands on the little boy's knees and lovingly asked, "Now, who has pink chubby legs?" Out loud, the little five year old replied, loud and clear, "MOMMY."

IPTV SERVICE COMING

The COACB is in the process of launching an IPTV service. We have had the service up for testing and it works great. The service will make our programming available to anyone who has highspeed internet service. We will be using high speed streaming flash for the service and mirror sites located around the world. Much more information will be available next month.
